About Regina Byrd

I began in financial education as a young girl, asking the question, "Why are certain people rich and happy and others or not?" The answer to this question has been a life-long pursuit.

My formal teaching began in 2015 when I taught children at a local library. I return to teach every year to give back to the community. I am an accountant. My mother is an accountant. The understanding of money runs in my blood. I am Certified Financial Educator.

I took the 16 hour certification course, which really goes deep on the understanding of finances, how we make our decisions, and how to motivate people to take action.
